

NYKONA SHARROWKYN

THE SHADOWMASTER, THE LONE RAVEN

65 POINTS

HQ

According to his own testimony, as soon as he was able to walk, he was used as a "salt boy," one of the countless children sent down the narrow tunnels leading to Lycaeus' tidal pools to harvest the precious salt for the tool-making factories' tempering waters.

While visibly involved in the later rebellion led by Corvus Corax to rid Lycaeus of the rule of the Tech-Guilds of Kiavahr and the cruel overseers that had been oppressing Lycaeus' population for centuries, it is unknown which role Sharrowkyn held within the rebels' army. But his extensive knowledge on Corax's way of war seemed to indicate that Sharrowkyn must have been close to the Primarch, or at least was utilised as one of several decoys that confused the prison's guards.

During the Great Crusade he served close to his primarch and on the dreadful day that was to be known as the Istvaan V massacre, he was amongst the first wave of the loyalist forces. As so many other he was wounded early and brought back to medicae facilities.

His fate after this is hazy to say the least, but he re appears later on board of an Iron Hands strike cruiser to serve the Emperor among his cousins of the X legion for the remainder of the Horus Heresy in many daring operations.
